LOS MANANTIALES

Los Manantiales coffee is a Red Geisha grown in the mountains of Jutiapa, in the New Oriente region of south-eastern Guatemala. The plots from which this lot originates are located between 1,730 and 2,000 metres above sea level, within a mountainous and forested environment.

This coffee comes from Los Manantiales farm, founded in 1997 and now managed by Ronald Pivaral. The estate is located in the Valencia / Los Manantiales mountain range and is distinguished by a dense natural shade canopy, notably made up of pine, cypress, cedar, avocado and walnut trees, which supports the development of the coffee trees and structures the local ecosystem.
