LA TIERRA DEL OLVIDO

This year, we completed our first export by sailing vessel, overcoming the challenge of preparing all coffees for shipment simultaneously and adhering to the requirement of shipping in multiples of twelve bags for palletization. To streamline logistics and avoid the complexity of mixed pallets, we opted to blend the remaining bags from various coffees.

Why this name? La Tierra del Olvido is a very well known song by Colombian artist Carlos Vives. It refers to la Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta, port and magic mountains that saw the vessel Anemos sail away. It translates as the forgotten land, forgotten just as these coffees, if it was not by this logistic solution would have stayed at a warehouse.

What can you have on this blend? Coffees from all over our range, from the south of the country in Buesaco, Nariño up north to Aratoca in Santander.
