

ABOUT THIS COFFEE

Faficho is the name of the river that runs through the different farms where the coffee of the same name is produced. The Daye Bensa group works here in close and direct relation with several hundred farmers, and combines their cherries to then produce high quality micro-lots. Anxious to constantly improve this quality, the members of Daye Bensa have set up a drying station in the village of Bombe, in the heart of these collection sites. They can then better control the processes and ensure precise traceability of the batch of Faficho coffee.
