The story of Finca Himalaya begins in the 1870s, when Mauricio's great-great-grandfather cultivated coffee in Apaneca, during El Salvador's export boom.

Located in Apaneca, Finca Himalaya is a 24-hectare farm belonging to the Salaverria family. Recognized as El Salvador's first specialty coffee farm, it benefits from an excellent terroir, with clay and volcanic soils that contribute to the production of high-quality coffees.

Today, Mauricio manages five farms, including Himalaya, as well as the El Divisadero project — his ideas laboratory, centered around a dry mill at Finca Villa Galicia, where he experiments with dozens of lots, varieties, and processes with each harvest.

Mauricio possesses a signature style instantly recognizable across his entire portfolio: tropical, very fruity, and expressive profiles, anchored by a sweetness that balances and supports the whole.
