

ABOUT THIS COFFEE

For Habtamu, training and the fair distribution of wealth are essential.

The washing station in Coba collects cherries from 116 producers.

Independent growers receive a premium during the harvest (1-2 birr more than the market price) as well as profits from sales.

During the harvest, Habtamu provides accommodation and meals for the pickers.

Throughout the year, producers are trained in organic cultivation methods and selective harvesting.

Habtamu's social commitment goes beyond the washing station and extends to 3 main projects

- Construction of a school in the community of Suke
